

FOR MY VILLAGE:-

There was a village named Mahalipur It was a beautiful village and the people in that village were very lovely people. They are very sweet and they treat each and every one with love and care. They always have the tendency to help others. They all live together as a pack. The people in that village celebrate all the festivals together. They even celebrate various festivals in their own village. In that village, there was a girl named Mukthi. She is a very brilliant girl. She studies well. She always scores top marks in her class. She wants to become a teacher. This was her childhood aim and dream. So she studied very hard to get good marks in her higher secondary school. Even though she got very good marks she was not selected in the college which she wanted to study. The reason she was not selected was money. Her parents are farmers so they couldn't afford the money which the college asked for. They even met higher officials in that college and explained their situation but they didn't listen to any of their explanations. So they applied to some other college which is not as popular as that college but they had no other options so they opted for that college.

Mukthi got selected in that college and she was happy at the same time she was a little sad but that didn't stop her determination to become a teacher. She studied well and she participated in all the games and workshops and competitions that were held in the college. She never missed an opportunity to express her talent. She completed her undergraduate degree with excellence. She was the college topper and was a gold medalist in her class.

Finally the graduation day came and chief guests were invited and many important people also came there. The principal gave the gold medal to her and asked her to give a speech. And she started her speech, "I am from a very small village named Mahalipur. It is such a lovely village. The people in that village are so caring and good hearted.

I studied in a government school which was 10 km away from my village. Many people in my village were very eager to study but because of the family situation and the distance of the school was very long. So many of us couldn't study. So, I determined myself to become a teacher and teach all the people in my village. I want to give education to each and every one in my village. I want my people to settle well in life without any worries. Here, I am, I passed my first milestone and I still have a few milestones that too I will pass and I will achieve my dreams". She completed her speech and everyone there appreciated her and clapped hands for her. After a few years, she became a teacher. Like her dream, she gets approval from the government to build a school in her village. All the people in her village got education and they settled well in their life.
